Trend of Trading Yesterday.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Bearish estimates in regard to the amount of domestic wheat of sufficient quality for milling did a good deal today to bring about a setback in prices. The market closed unsettled, but 2c to 2 1/2c not lower.

Wheat has been weak and strong by turns until late in the session, one of the largest houses on "change" made public elaborate figures indicating that the millable crop of the United States aggregated 948,000,000 bushels. This total was much more liberal than the majority of dealers had recently been disposed to believe and the consequences was to give the market a decisive downward slant the rest of the day.

The final setback, however, was not brought about until for the third day in succession the market had reached above all previous high price records of the 1915 crop.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7.—After an advance of 14 to 15 points in the first half of the session today, the local cotton market felt the pressure of liquidation from long holders and the close was at a net gain for the session of only 3 to 6 points. The high prices early in the day were the result of a demand stimulated by the sharp rise in the Liverpool market and the large sales of spots there.

Recalls Early Day Trip Through Territory

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hill of Hempstead, Texas, who arrived in Chickasha yesterday, will remain for some as guests of their daughter, Mrs. Ed F. Johns.

Mr. Hill is a retired planter, owning between eight hundred and one thousand acres of fine Texas land near Hempstead, where he has resided continuously since coming to Texas from Cincinnati, years ago.

In speaking of the portions of the "great new state," Oklahoma, which it has been his good fortune to see, Mr. Hill referred to it as the coming agricultural land of the union. Viewing the farms and the cities through which he traveled from the car window, Mr. Hill stated that southern Oklahoma consists of the "finest land out of doors."

Inasmuch as this is the first trip Mr. Hill has made to the old Indian territory since 1872, when this section was the heart of the "wild and woolly," he was more than pleasantly surprised with the great strides which have been taken during the past few years in developing and building up and placing the southern Oklahoma of today on the nation's map.

With railways criss-crossing each other and winding in and out through the valleys and diverging like mighty spider webs across the boundless prairies of half a century since, Mr. Hill says it is hard for a man to bring himself to believe that this is the same country over which he rode in a stage coach in the early seventies—the same land where the straggling shacks of the early settlers were all that broke the expanse of miles and miles of solitude.

In referring to the last trip he made through the old Indian territory, Mr. Hill spoke of the leaving of the railway train at Muskogee, of the days after days of riding in the old-time stage coaches and the lunging, bumping "mud wagons"; of the stopping for meals at scattered stage stands; of the numerous Indians to be seen here and there throughout a day's journey; of the scattered ranch houses; of the thousands upon thousands of "ten horns" which roamed the lands over which the cattle barons rode and where the right of might was the only known law.

It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

I applied Sloan's Liniment, freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new." March, 1915.
